A Thorough Test.

One That Will Convince the Most Skeptical Norway Reader.

Cures that last are cures that count. Doan's Kidney Pills make thorough cures.

The following case is typical. Norway residents should be convinced. The testimony is confirmed—the cure lasted.

Proof like this cannot be ignored. Mrs. P. A. Walker, Cottage St., Norway, Me., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills some time ago and they greatly benefited me. My case was not serious, but I had symptoms of kidney complaint and decided to try a good remedy. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Stone's Drug Store. A short time after using them I felt better in every way."

The above statement was given July 24, 1908, and on July 18, 1911, Mrs. Walker said: "Although three years have passed since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me, I have been as free from kidney trouble, as if I had never had it." 52-1

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

The Eternity of Today

I disclaim the gift to worry lest tomorrow bring me sorrow.

Yet why should we ever hurry towards things we do not know? And although your heart be gladder when some brighter thing you see, Yet why should a soul be sadder when a soul has crossed the sea?

Every day is lovely when your heart is free from care. There's the sun forever shining in full glory over there.

And a rainbow full of beauty, over yonder, life beyond the grave; These, the glorious powers of Nature, shining forth your soul to save; Wherefore preach of future haven, of a world of greater bliss?

We may boast of no tomorrow, own no other day but this. Every day is heaven if your heart be free from care.

There's the sun forever shining in full glory over there. And a rainbow full of beauty over yonder there for you. THE DREAMER.

Marshmallows with Cream. To the candy-lover marshmallows are things to be enjoyed in their common state, or doubly enjoyed when roasted over the coals. But they are something more valuable than mere candies to the housewife who knows how to utilize them in the emergencies. When serving cocoa and there is no cream, or no time to whip it, drop about four marshmallows into each cup and pour the boiling cocoa over them. They will come to the top as light as a feather and be of whipped cream, though not quite as puffy and fluffy. The flavor is delightful.

If something is wanted to serve with a cup of cocoa to a caller put a marshmallow or two on a thin wafer, or use a sweetened cracker, with a tiny bit of butter on each "mallow." Place in a hot oven until the marshmallow spreads and slightly browns.

Half a pound of marshmallows mixed lightly with a cupful of cream, whipped stiff makes a delicious dish to serve with cake. Flavor the cream with vanilla, or whatever is liked. Pile lightly in glasses and serve with a strawberry, cherry or other preserved fruit on top. An extra touch is given by hanging the glass with shagreened pineapple, sliced bananas, peaches or other fruit before filling with the cream. A similar dish is made by making a jelly with any of the gelatine preparations and mixing broken marshmallows through it when cool enough that it will not melt them.

A fine filling for cake is made as follows: Put one-fourth cupful of milk and three-fourth cupful of sugar together and bring to boiling and let boil six minutes. While this is cooking put one-fourth of a pound of marshmallows in a basin and melt; add two table-spoonsful of boiling water and cook until smooth. Add the syrup slowly, beating constantly. Flavor with vanilla and beat until cool enough to spread.

The above makes a good icing as well as a filling, but for those who prefer to make the plain icing it is worth while to know that a few marshmallows pulled to pieces and beaten into the icing while the candy is still in the pot will melt hot (as soon as the syrup is poured over) and make it of fine texture and keep it from cracking when set. Ten or a dozen marshmallows in the icing for an average size cake.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury. as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Cheng & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces. It is the genuine. It is taken internally and made by Dr. J. C. Cheney & Co., Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists. Price, 75c. per bottle.

Jefferson's Monument. At the death of Thomas Jefferson (which by a strange coincidence occurred on the same day as that of John Adams, on the 4th of July, the fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence),—Congress appropriated a sum for a large monument to be raised above his ashes. A memorial, however, found among Jefferson's effects, specially requested that his tombstone should be extremely simple. The paper gave a minute description of what the stone should be; how carved; and with only the following inscription, leaving a blank space for the date of the death, which was afterwards added:

Here was buried THOMAS JEFFERSON author of the Declaration of Independence of the Statute of Virginia for Religious Freedom and Father of the University of Virginia.

Born April 2, 1743, O. S. Died July 4, 1826.

No mention of the high honors that came to him. Liberty for his country, the gift of a great man to his kind. Liberty for his State, the knowledge that that State had not given him birth in vain, the one glory of a Virginian's life.

Most of the money appropriated by Congress for the monument was used in raising the massive spiked iron fence which surrounds the Randolph's burying ground. Two high gates give entrance to the enclosure. Inscribed thereon is Jefferson's code of arms, and above it a scroll which bears the famous motto: "so liberty as a quo spiritus." (Liberty comes from Him Who gives us life.)—Munsey.

KEZAR FALLS. Joseph Gilpatrick. Joseph Gilpatrick, a greatly esteemed citizen of this village, passed away Dec. 18th.

Funeral services conducted by Rev. Gideon Ridlon of Portland were held in the M. E. church on the afternoon of the 17th. The Masons, Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias were represented. The Masonic organization held their services also in the church. The male quartette sang three beautiful selections. Mr. Gilpatrick leaves two daughters and very many friends to keep his memory green.

Interment was in the Hillside cemetery beside the dear wife, who preceded him a few years ago.

Mrs. Joshua Elliott, who has been in failing health the past year, entered into rest on Sunday morning. Mrs. Elliott was a devoted wife and mother and enjoyed the friendship and esteem of many friends.

Rev. H. A. Pearce of Conway conducted the services at her home, Tuesday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Pearce and Mr. Norton sang three beautiful selections. The casket was surrounded by many beautiful flowers, conspicuous among them being a pillow inscribed with the words "Wife and Mother, bearing the haloed name 'Mother.'"

Mrs. Elliott leaves beside her husband a daughter and two sons to endure the loss of the first broken link in the family circle. Interment was in the Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Moses Norton has gone to visit a niece in South Portland. Fred Snow of Winchester, Mass., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wakefield.

Madeline Wakefield, who is pursuing her musical studies in Winchester, Mass., is home for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. John Osgood have returned from their California trip. Mr. Osgood says Kezar Falls is good enough for him.

Monday evening the L. M. R. C. were entertained at the home of Mrs. Charles Truett. They must have enjoyed themselves for it was early morning before they reached their respective homes.

LOCKE'S MILLS. Tom Brown spent the week-end in Bethel. Mary Dresser visiting Grace Kendall at Bethel.

Walter Curtis spent Christmas with his parents at Curtis Corner. Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Tebbets are spending Christmas with relatives at Auburn and Durham.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Flake with two daughters are spending Christmas with relatives at Waterford. Christmas was observed at the Union church, Saturday evening. The trees were well lighted, also the church, which was very prettily decorated for the occasion. The exercises were few but very appropriate and enjoyable. One very pretty feature was a cantata by fifteen scholars. Recitations and singing included the entertainment. There came a part when all had something to do.

THE NORWAY HAND LAUNDRY

Is one of the forces of civilization. It encourages cleanliness, hygiene, health.
30 per cent. of its work today is flat work. In other words 30 per cent. of the women of this country have learned that it pays to send more than skirts and collars to the laundry.
If you have not realized the benefits set forth you have not found the right laundry. The right laundry does exist in this fair town and it is well worth your while to find it. Begin next week to realize that the good laundry is handy and keeps faith with its customers.

The Sweet Corn Situation.

"The action of some of the sweet corn packers in shutting down their factories before the corn is delivered, leaving the growers to suffer a heavy loss naturally interests all those seeking to foster our agriculture.

Now a contract is not one-sided. If a man agrees to grow one of ten acres of sweet corn the factory is under obligation to accept the product thereof. If There must be mutual obligations. If a man signs for two acres and plants four it is the duty of the packer to protect every other person to the extent of their contract yield before accepting any surplus yield from any individual.

The fact that a factory has packed to its full capacity is no excuse if there is one man left out who contracted to plant and whose corn has not been packed.

Having made the contract it becomes the duty of the grower to use all diligence and skill in perfecting the crop and of the packer to receive the same when the corn is ready. We do not believe any packer can relieve himself from payment for the corn contracted for simply because he has reached the limit of his cans or has packed all he had planned for.

But there is another problem more intricate to be settled.
In former years the corn planted the first of June was ready for packing by Aug. 20 to 25th when the factories started operations. As the packers reserve the right to furnish seed, under plea of a uniform grade of corn there has been a gradual forcing of the season by use of the seed, so that the grower was forced to take additional chances of a freeze. Thus this season some of our large Maine factories did not start until Sept. 11th, simply because the corn was not ready, and when the heavy frost of Sept. 13th struck there was of necessity a very large per cent.
of the corn in the hands of the packers that was not ready for packing. It is not for the responsible and should not be forced to suffer the heavy loss resulting. There is neither justice nor good policy in the treatment our growers are receiving.

If their corn was not ready for picking when frost came then the question of seed supply, and length of time necessary for maturity, must become a question factor in settling the question of damages. Maine grown seed would have matured in season to have been packed if planted at the proper time. If the date of planting was delayed at the request of the packers, as was often the case, in order to extend the season for packing then surely the growers should not be held responsible.

It is a established fact that corn that is established by environment and seed brought from southern Massachusetts, the Connecticut Valley or further south will not ripen as early as that from our own fields.

The sweet corn industry has grown to large proportions. For some reason, not readily explained, no other Eastern state has attempted the business upon any broader scale. Maine sweet corn establishes the standard quality everywhere. As the business has increased packers have slowly responded to the demand for a fair price until this year the growers felt that they were justified in extending operations.

Readers must try in mind the fact that there is a wide distinction between yellow and sweet corn in adaptability to our climate and that the grower of sweet corn takes chances not met by those who cling to the old flint variety, for this injects a factor into the case not always recognized.

Thinking only of the performance of the industry attention is here directed to a less sustained by growers, of such magnitude to individuals, that, if the refusal of packers to make good is sustained by the courts, where claims for damages will finally be presented, the factories will permanently be closed in those localities affected. Even so, some packers recognize the inevitable obligations and have received all the corn contracted for, and the factories paying the regular price, and then selling the unpacked corn for feeding purposes as best they could. That this entails a loss is self evident but the problem now is whose shoulders must bear that loss, the packer or the grower.

If the fact be established that a factory can be operated and closed to suit the whims or plans of a packer then the thought of a contract drops out and the whole business rests upon a go-as-you-please basis.

If a farmer contracts to plant an acre and then neglects to do so or fails to properly care for the same he could, and it would be better if he was, held responsible for any destructive storm comes before the corn is ready, as was the case two years ago, neither party is at fault, but if the seed is adapted to Maine conditions and the crop ready for packing we fail to see how the packer can escape his share of the obligation expressed or implied by the contract.

For the good of the industry these questions should be settled before time elapses acreage for 1912 that the business, so peculiarly adapted to Maine, so valuable to packers, and offering the opportunity for a ready cash crop for farmers, may be strengthened and not destroyed in any locality. The nature of the industry is paramount to the selfish interests of any individual or corporation.—Express Advertiser.

Careless Speech of Young.

If the young girl would once stop for a few minutes in conversation and listen to the way her friends recklessly use the English language, she would realize the truth of the remark of older women who sigh and say that the rising generation hasn't even time to talk correctly now-days. Good English is sacrificed to the rush of modern life, and there is no time to stop and think of grammar.

Girls feel that if they have to waste precious moments in considering whether or what they say is correct there will not be time to say all they wish to say, so for this reason sentences are slurred and one word is made to suffice where years ago it would have taken two or three to convey the meaning intended.

How frequently is heard, "My dear, I really haven't seen you in months, but I can only say a moment." So the gossip of an entire season must be told in ten minutes, and in order to do this every word that is not actually necessary is left out. As a result the art of conversation is forgotten. Many times when a girl is telling an anecdote one hears, "O, please spare the details and get to the point!" Then the narrative shortens and the most interesting words, "awful" and "terrible" which the dictionary tells us mean to "fill with awe or terror." How seldom are they correctly used. They are the vocabulary, and yet they are meant to express emotion.

If employed in correct form they would sound flat and tame and be utterly inadequate to express what is meant.
Were the words not so abused they would be sufficient in themselves. This is a habit of which a girl should try to break herself.

One of the many misfortunes that must be endured by the girl who acquires this habit of exaggeration is the fact that her friends will soon widely know, and no matter how true the story, if credited at all. Yet were the girl told that she was not telling the truth she would be indignant and hotly deny the accusation. She should stop and think a minute before making an exaggerated statement and see how ridiculous the sounds. When a girl says, "It was the most wonderful thing I have seen," in describing a trivial incident the listener may well be skeptical. Again is this exaggeration foolish because it leaves nothing left to be said when there is something remarkable to be related. Yet how many girls use that expression, "wonderful" not once but ten times a day.

Slang is another bad habit unfortunately acquired by the modern girl.
Some girls think slang boyish and smart, but while slang terms on a girl's lips may be amusing at the moment, in the long run they cheapen her and detract from her feminine charms.

Wallace Ryerson.

Wallace Ryerson died at his home in South Paris, Saturday morning, Dec. 23, of Bright's disease, with which he had been afflicted some time but he was only confined to the bed a few days.

Mr. Ryerson was born in West Sumner, April 11, 1828, the son of Nathaniel Osgood and Nancy Hensley Ryerson. His age was 84 years and 8 months.

He had lived in the house where he was born all his life till he bought the Sylvan Shurtleff house at South Paris about fifteen years ago. He was a farmer and egg merchant for forty years. He was in company with Jacob Howe a few years and later on his own account. He collected and handled eggs from a large territory in this part of the State, driving day and night, and was well known throughout the country. His father had a large farm and he continued its cultivation. In politics he was a republican; religiously, he was a Universalist.

Mr. Ryerson was three times married. His first wife was Hannah Andrews; his second Mrs. Elmira Chandler Cole; and the third, who survives him, Esther Moore.

The funeral was from his home, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 24th, the clergyman attending, Rev. R. J. Bruce and Rev. C. G. Miller. The bearers were W. Walker, Porter Stearns, Mr. Monk and Leander Billings. The remains were placed in the tomb at Riverside cemetery and in the spring will be buried in the family lot at West Sumner.

Joseph Andrews Letters.

A Trip from Oxford County to Fairport Harbor, Ohio.

DEAR ADVERTISER:—Between three and four months ago I wrote my last letter to the ADVERTISER from Jackson, N. H., and that in my next I would write of the many friends that I had met while on my vacation trip to my old home in Maine. In all I visited in more than forty homes, all old time friends or their children, and many of them were living on the old homestead farms where I used to meet them in my boyhood days.

Under such pleasant conditions the days passed all too soon, and the day of my departure came, and after this long delay I will give you a sketch of my return trip, promising that by and by with the Editor's consent, and when I get in a reminiscent mood, to write some sketches of the many friends I met and recall from memory's storehouse some of the things I saw and heard in my early days.

On Sept. 14th, Henry Andrews of West Fryeburg took me to the village station, where I boarded the early morning train and started on my return journey to Ohio. I arrived at the B. & M. depot in Boston about noon, and crossing the street in front of that station, I first patronized a nearby barber shop, and then went in search of my dinner, which I found on the next block to the right. It was a basement restaurant, large, neat, and well regulated and with everything in order, and the large number of well dressed men and women seated at the tables showed that it was a well patronized and popular eating house.

I had packed my glasses in my suitcase and could not well rest the bill of fare cards, but I saw that two men seated at the opposite side of the table each had a well filled plate of corned beef hash which looked very much like the kind "Mother used to make," and I called for the same and was furnished with a steaming plate of the hash accompanied by two slices of bread with milk and a large cup of coffee. We had a good deal of the high price of living, and expected to pay at least a quarter for my dinner, and came near failing in a faint when the waiter placed a ticket by my plate marked in plain figures 10 cents, which I paid and went on my way refreshed and rejoicing.

The sub station for the electric line is just across the street from the B. & M. station and thither I went and boarded an electric car bound for Wellesley Hills about fifteen miles out. The fare was fifteen cents and I had to make two transfers, and in less than two hours I was being entertained at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brooks, located amongst the far-famed W. Leeley Hills.

Mr. Brooks (see Mary Andrews) is a native of Fryeburg, and is a sister of the Hon. John Andrews of Conway, N. H. Mr. Brooks is a popular traveling salesman. He is an enthusiastic sportsman and daughter have made a trip to Europe in recent years, and he has a large collection of souvenirs including hundreds of snap shot kodak pictures of his own taking. Mr. Brooks has one son by a former marriage but he was away from home a d I have forgotten his name.

They have but one child living, Margaret, a bright, talented and beautiful young lady of twenty-two, the joy and sunshine of her parents' home. Her twin brother, John Colby Brooks, a young man of high character and with a brilliant future before him died but a few years ago by his own hand, and his sad and tragic death has been the one great sorrow of his life.

On Saturday I went to Boston and out to Danvers, where I spent a pleasant hour at the commodious home of Dean Andrews and his sister, Miss Callista Andrews, brother and sister of Henry Andrews of West Fryeburg. I found Dean now in his 80th year, quite feeble but slowly recovering from a serious illness which he had last summer and able to be about the house.

After dinner Callista took me on a sight seeing excursion to the nearby and historic city of Salem, by electric car. We walked by the Roger Williams house built in 1632 and known as the Witch house, and passed down one of the long, narrow streets and turning to the right we followed other narrow streets and at last down near the water's edge we found what we were looking for, "The House of Seven Gables" made famous by Hawthorne, and at one time his home.

The house was built in the long, long ago of massive timbers bowed out with the broad-axe and the boards fastened on with wooden pins instead of the steel and iron nails of today. We visited most of the seven gables, entered the secret stairway by the side of the big fireplace and climbed the winding stairway to another secret door and restored to light and liberty. The house has been restored much as it was when Hawthorne lived there and much of the furniture is the same as used by the famous writer. It is owned, I believe, by a Ladies' Historical Society, who keep it in good repair, an admission fee of 25 cents being charged.

Salem has a population of some 40,000 and one could well spend many days in visiting its wonderful historical attractions, but the longest day must have an end and as the sun sank low in the west I bade my friend and guide good bye, and while she took a car back to Danvers I boarded a B. & M. train bound for Boston and in the early evening was back in the "Hub" city, where I again patronized my favorite restaurant. This time my order called for corned beef hash and apple pie. It was accompanied by two warm biscuits with butter and a big cup of coffee with cream and sugar, and all for the magnificent sum of 13 cents.

From here I went direct to the Subway station and boarded a car and about 10 p. m. arrived at the Brooks home, where I visited over Sunday. On Sunday I took a six mile walk on the grounds around the great Wellesley Female Seminary. The grounds are extensive and beautiful and the buildings grand and imposing. The people of Massachusetts and indeed of all portions of our country may well feel proud of this great female institution of learning.

On Monday morning I bade my friends good bye and started again on my return trip. I went by electric car to Worcester, a city of 130,000 population, where I spent the afternoon in sight seeing and at night boarded a solid steel Pullman train on the great N. Y. C. R. R. Pullman train, ticketed to Astabula, Ohio, via Albany and Buffalo, N. Y., and was soon in the "Land of Nod."

When I awoke the next morning we were well past Buffalo and were swiftly gliding along near the shores of Lake Erie. This is a great fruit raising country, the nearness of the great lake tends to keep off the late and early frosts of the fall and spring. We must have traveled for an hour through a grape country with vineyards both large and small on either side. After passing Erie, Pa. the growing crops seemed mostly to be corn and garden truck. With Buffalo, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Akron and a host of smaller manufacturing cities within easy reach, there is a fine market for all kinds of farm produce.

Just before reaching Astabula we crossed the trestle bridge where on Dec. 29th, 1876 an express train of eleven cars on the M. S. & L. S. R. R. loaded with its precious freight of one hundred and fifty-six human beings—plunged through the bridge to the bed of the river seventy-five feet below. The wrecked train at once took fire and all who could not extricate themselves from the ruins were burned to death. At least eighty lives were lost and amongst them the lamented P. P. Bliss and wife who were on their way to attend one of D. L. Moody's great revival meetings in Chicago. It was dark and a fearful blizzard was raging at the time and no pen can describe or tongue portray the horrors of that awful night.

I left the train at Astabula and boarded a local passenger train for Painesville about 30 miles distant, arriving there I took the Fairport car to Fairport 3 miles distant where I arrived about 9 a. m. It was a basement restaurant, large, neat, safe and sound, thus ending a most enjoyable two months summer vacation trip in which I visited many homes and traveled by boat and rail including side trips in fishing and returning more than 2,500 miles.

It may be of interest to your readers to know how the little city of Fairport with its population of some over 2,300 is prospering. Its large public school building was burned a year or more ago and a new $75,000 fire-proof building with brick walls and cement floors and roof has been hired as school rooms, which with the four rooms in the high school building makes fifteen separate schools crowded. Of the population of the city about 1200 are Finns and the balance about evenly divided between Hungarians and Americans and you know that most of our foreign population do not believe in or practice race suicide. Of the eighth grade students who graduated last June all were Finns.

All summer long contractors have been busy installing a modern sewerage system. They use a gasoline ditching machine which as it slowly moves a long pipe completes a ditch from six to thirteen feet deeper while a crew of workmen follow in the rear and lay the pipe and complete the job, then other men come with teams and haul the extra dirt.

They have a good supply of lake water under a high pressure supplied from the Painesville water works.

Navigation on the lakes are closed. The iron ore docks owned by the Steel Trust are loaded down with thousands of tons of iron ore, which will keep many trains on the B. & O. R. R. busy every day in the week for many months to come. I visited the dock the other day where they were loading a large lake steamer with coal. A locomotive would back a few cars under the great iron frame elevator, which is perhaps eighty feet high, then make connection with a loaded steel car and elevate it like a toy high in the air then turn the car upside down and dump the load into a shoot where it falls down below decks in several cars and the average in elevating, unloading and lowering the car was a fraction less than one minute.

The Soda Ash plant of which I wrote my last summer is nearing completion. It has on its payroll 800 men and represents an investment of a million dollars so I am told. They have sank eight deep salt wells, which combined with limestone brought from Kelley's Island and lake water make the raw material from which the Soda Ash is made. It is an immense establishment and will be a great factor in the upbuilding and prosperity of the bright little city of Fairport.

Old Magazines.

A great deal of good can be done with old magazines after the family has finished reading them. Let the children in the family or in your neighbor's family have the magazine from which they are allowed to cut the pictures for paper dolls, scrapbook or toy furniture. Out of all interesting articles that you wish to refer to in the future, and paste them in a scrapbook for that purpose. Pictures that are good enough to be kept lay in a flat box; some day they may afford the children or yourself a great deal of happiness in framing or for decorative purposes.

One woman has her attic bedroom papered with good pictures cut from magazines. They are arranged in an artistic manner, and are the joy of all the children in the neighborhood who delight in hearing her weave romance about each picture.

The cut-up magazines are then relegated to the kitchen, where they are used to rub off the hot irons or as a pad under hot pots and pans that are taken from the stove and set upon the table. When the pages scorched or soiled they are torn off and thrown away, leaving a clean box some day to be kept to use to start the fire or to produce a little extra heat for the browning of a cake if the oven is not quite hot enough.

Catarrh of Stomach.

Indigestion and Stomach Ailment Quickly Ended.

If you went to thirty doctors and paid each his fee for a prescription for indigestion or stomach misery it is ten chances to one you would not get such a good prescription as the one from which M-O-N-A stomach tablets are made.

How can such a thing be? you naturally ask.

Simply because the man who wrote the prescription from which M-O-N-A tablets are made knows more about stomach diseases than 99 per cent of all the physicians in America, and he gets paid for knowing.

And when you get a large box of tablets made from this doctor's prescription for only 50 cents, are you going to continue to suffer? Sold by Frank Storey, proprietor of the Noyes Drug Store and druggists everywhere. 522

Merrick S. Tibbets, who is a newcomer among the young men of Bethel, has demonstrated his capacity to make good in his chosen work in tones of no uncertain sound.

For the past two years he has been employed by the Prudential Life Insurance Co., as District Manager, having for his field Oxford and Franklin Counties. It seems that the Prudential has some time since had a $100,000 league, conditions for membership being that an agent must write and pay for $100,000 insurance in 12 months. Membership in the league entitles one to an annual trip to some point at the expense of the Company. The trip this year to which Mr. Tibbets is entitled will be to Colorado Springs, Col.

It certainly shows a persistent application to business on the part of Mr. Tibbets to pull off a $100,000 business in these two sparsely populated counties when it is observed that only two agents have won out in the State of Massachusetts with its big boasted Boston. The following letter has just been received by Mr. Tibbets from the Vice-President of the Company:

December 15, 1911.

Mr. Merrick S. Tibbets,
District Manager,
Bethel, Me.

My dear Mr. Tibbets:—

It is a pleasure to observe that you have just qualified for 1911 membership in the $100,000 League. Accept our hearty congratulations. Under separate cover we have mailed you your bronze medal and certificate of membership for the current year.

In paying for $100,000 of new business within a period of twelve months, you have progressed from the large class of salesmen who do things worth while. Trusting that nothing will prevent your attending the Colorado Springs Convention next year and wishing you continued success, I remain,

Very truly yours,
Forrest F. Dryden,
Vice-President.

Colder During Sleep.

Our young readers all know, perhaps, that when a person lies down without undressing to take a nap it is, as a rule, necessary to have some light covering to prevent catching cold. The room may be warm and comfortable, but something more than the ordinary day clothing is needed. Why? It is all a matter of the circulation of the blood. When you are asleep your heart may beat ten times less a minute than when you are up and moving about. Ten beats less a minute means 600 beats less an hour, or 1,200 beats less in two hours. Now the heart throws out about six ounces of blood at each beat, and in 1,200 beats it throws out, therefore, 7,200 ounces of blood. As the warmth of the body depends on the vigor of the circulation and as the heart does so much less work when you are asleep, you see why the body needs additional protection at that time.

SAVED HIS WIFE'S LIFE.

"My wife would have been in her grave to-day," writes O. H. Brown, of Muscadine, Ala., "if it had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery. She was down in her bed, not able to get up without help. She had a severe bronchial trouble and a dreadful cough, got her a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, and she soon began to mend, and was well in a short time." Infallible remedy on earth for desperate lung trouble, hemorrhages, lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, croup and whooping cough. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by The Noyes Drug Store, 45-52

Safe Treatment for Headache.

The rational treatment for headache is to get at the cause, if possible, and remove it. Headache is only a symptom of trouble somewhere in the system, and dosing with tablets or powders containing acetanilid or other coal-tar derivatives which stop the pain temporarily but weaken the heart, is at once unsafe and unwise. The headache may come from your eyes, then a good oculist can help you at once with proper eyeglasses; but if it comes with flushed tongue, loss of appetite, nausea, and constipation, it is usually the result of disordered digestion, or torpid liver, or one or two doses of L. F. Atwood's Medicine will speedily help you by carrying off impurities and restoring the clogged digestive organs to their normal activity. In using this old reliable remedy, you take no chances of weakening the heart's action.

It has a record of sixty years as a safe headache remedy. The "L. F." Medicine Co., Portland, Maine.

We shall try to serve you in 1912 than in 1911; we shall try to have better merchandise than ever before, and sell it to the better advantage of our customers than ever before.

Your Plans for Next Year

The last of the year is the time when books are balanced, accounts straightened out and plans laid for a larger business during the next year. In making your plans do not overlook the importance that a good bank should occupy in your transactions. A Bank Account carries with it a peace and an impression of prosperity not easily gained in any other way.

Yet it is easy and simple to carry a Bank Account—just bring in or mail your deposit and then when you pay a bill draw a check for the amount owed. At the end of the year you can take your cancelled checks, returned to you by the Bank, and see how and where the money went.

For 39 years we have bought and sold bonds. We have on hand Municipal Bonds netting 4 per cent and better which we offer for sale. Four per cent to five and one-half per cent is not a sudden road wealth, but safety after all, is the vital consideration.

Why not now seek the aid of this strong institution in extending your field and increasing the volume of your business?
